

Acknowledgments

As THE editor of this journal, I would like to express my deep gratitude to the Japan-United States Friendship Commission for a generous grant which made the publication of this inaugural issue possible. I would like to thank especially Dr. Daniel Boorstin and Dr. Robert H. Walker, both members of the Commission, for their pertinent suggestions on the editorial policy of this journal, and Mr. Francis B. Tenny, Executive Director of the Commission, and Dr. Ivan P. Hall, its Assistant Executive Director, for their kind interest in this project.

In translating several articles into English, I received the cooperation of the Translation Service Center, headed by Mr. James L. Stewart of the Asian Foundation. Nagai's article, except for its short preface, was translated by Mr. Frank Baldwin of the Translation Service Center. Draft translations of Iokibe's and Igarashi's articles were also supplied by the Center. Hosoya's article was translated by the editor. Miyasato and Asada wrote their articles in English. I would like to thank them and the other authors for their cooperation with the editor.

My special thanks are due to Dr. Asada and Dr. Roger Buckley, who kindly read parts of the manuscripts and galleys and helped the editor in improving the quality of English. I am also very thankful to Mrs. Yasuo Furuya, who helped the editors with her expertise in proofreading.

I owe much to Mr. Yoshiji Komiyama, of the Komiyama Printing Company, who helped me with his patience and expertise and produced a beautifully printed journal.

Finally, I would like to acknowledge my indebtedness to the members of the Editorial Board and the associate editors. The Board members made basic decisions on the editorial policy, and my colleagues on the editorial staff provided me with indispensable assistance in every phase of editing.

I would like to add, however, that it is only the editor who is responsible for all the shortcomings in the editorial policy and for all the typographical and grammatical errors and inadequacies in style which may still remain in this issue of the journal.
